Hague, February 14, N. S.

BY a Courier from Turin, arrived here laſt Saturday, we have Advices from Provence of the 28th paſt, N. S. that upon the News of Marſhal Belleiſle's Motions, General Brown had recalled all his Parties, and withdrawn from Antibes what Troops were not abſolutely neceſſary for keeping the Place cloſely blocked up; and had taken an advantageous Poſt, and intrenched himſelf behind the Ciagne, in order to wait the Enemy there. The Auſtrians were then Maſters of the open Country between the Mountains and the City of Genoa; but had not made any immediate Attempt upon the City itſelf, their heavy Artillery not being then come up. The Night before laſt, Twenty Tranſports arrived at Helvoet from England, with the firſt Diviſion of the Troops deſigned for the Army in Brabant. According to this Day's Letters from Paris, M. de Puyſieux was ſo far recovered, that on the 9th he had ſet up a Couple of Hours. M. du Theil was to ſet out immediately for Breda; whither Count Waſſenaer, who has been here ſince M. de Puyſieux's Departure from thence, deſigns to return on Thurſday next. The French Poſt which is come in this Afternoon, has brought the poſitive News of General Brown's having abandoned the Ciagne, and retreated behind another little River ſomething farther backward. The French pretend that he had actually repaſſed the Var.

Admiralty Office, February 10.

The Prize is arrived at Portſmouth.
